DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 1, 2, 8, and 9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Yashima et al (US 6,806,553). Yashima teaches a tunable thin film capacitor comprising a MgO substrate, a BST film that may have a (111) orientation, and an electrode pattern formed on the BST film. Regarding the limitation “phase array” and satellite system, Yashima teaches that the tunable thin film capacitor may be used in an array antenna, and antennas are considered to be used in satellite communications. (col. 17, lines 22-26; col. 23, lines 28-30; col. 33, lines 30-35; col. 36, lines 1-11, col. 63, lines 28-36). The method limitation of claims 2 and 9 is not considered to add structural definition over the article of the prior art.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's amendments have overcome the rejection over Kawakubo.

The rejection over Yashima is maintained for reason's stated above. Specifically, Yashima teaches that the tunable device may be used in an array antenna system. Antenna systems are also used in satellite communications.

In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
